

Zero means no coefficient change. Negative values generally indicate attenuation when the benchmark and centroid coefficients have the same sign.